Dear Collector

Welcome to our April Mint Issue. The first quarter of the year has been full of new coin releases and events to keep us all busy.

Our year began with our traditional mintmark events where we joined Emalee Albrich in bidding farewell to the 2011 Ram’s Head Dollar on New Year’s Eve and then the Mint welcomed the Wheat Sheaf Dollar as 2012’s mintmark design. Peter Russo set up his chair outside the Mint’s front door on Friday 30 December 2011, and his persistence paid off when he became the first person to strike a coin on the Mint’s visitor press for 2012.

Beamed into televisions around the world in January was one of the most epic tennis matches in history where Novak Djokovic and Rafael Nadal battled to take home the 100th Men’s Championship medal, which was designed and made by the Mint. Tennis Australia also held an eBay coin auction for a chance to own the Royal Australian Mint collectible coins tossed to begin the Australian Open men’s and women’s finals, and raised in total around $4000 for the Australian Tennis Foundation.

At the beginning of February, a small team and I attended the largest coin show in the world – the World Money Fair in Berlin. During this time, we heard about many upcoming trends from world mints that will set the numismatic stage in years to come and discussed recent coin issues with international coin dealers. This has resulted in some new initiatives which we are excited to bring to you over the coming years.

This month’s Mint Issue is brimming with new coin releases, including the latest issue in our Australia Remembers series which recognises the contribution of the Australian Merchant Navy in supporting our armed forces throughout our nation’s history.

The next two releases of the popular Animals of the Zoo colour printed coin series, Sumatran Tiger and Southern Corroboree Frog, become the latest exotic animals to make the leap to coin design. This colour printed series is preceded by such well-loved treasures as the Ocean, Land and Air Series, and is sure to be a hit.

We hope to see you all at the Sydney Royal Easter Show, where we have been lucky enough to get a booth next to the CWA stand, as well as the Brisbane ANDA Show, that is just around the corner.

Happy collecting

The next release in our Australia Remembers series is now available, and just in time for ANZAC Day. The Australia Remembers series recognises those who have made history beyond the battlefields. In 2012 we pay tribute to the Australian Merchant Navy, who have played an essential role in supporting Australian forces on battlefields around the world.

Merchant mariners are a country’s lifeline, transporting essential supplies through wartime and peace. During WWII, the Merchant Navy suffered a higher rate of casualties than any of the armed forces. Their courage and commitment has been honoured with memorials and service medals, and now by the Royal Australian Mint.

This special coin is presented in the now traditional poppy adorned card.

70TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE KOKODA TRAIL

COURAGE
SACRIFICE
2012 will mark 70 years since the Kokoda campaign took place. During this campaign, a series of violent conflicts occurred along the notorious Kokoda Trail from July to November 1942. While the Gallipoli campaign of WWI was Australia’s first military test as a new nation, the fighting during the Kokoda campaign represents the first time in the nation’s history that its security was directly threatened.

The village of Isurava was the site of one of several battles fought by Australian troops during their retreat along the Kokoda Trail to Imita Ridge, and the advance to the crossing of the Kumusi at Wairopi. The then Prime Minister John Howard and Prime Minister of Papua New Guinea Sir Michael Somare unveiled a memorial to the Kokoda Trail campaign in Isurava on 14 August 2002.

The memorial is immediately adjacent to the site where Private Bruce Kingsbury performed an act of valour for which he was awarded the Victoria Cross (VC), the first VC awarded in Papua New Guinea.

As a tribute to this period, the Royal Australian Mint is releasing a commemorative uncirculated 50c piece. The coin’s design has been inspired by the Isurava Memorial. The memorial features four Australian black granite pillars, which each represent a defining ANZAC quality—Courage, Endurance, Mateship, and Sacrifice.

With the peace that we enjoy in Australia, it is easy to forget that not so long ago war was on our doorstep. At the height of World War II, between February 1942 and November 1943, the Australian mainland, domestic airspace, offshore islands and coastal shipping were targeted over 100 times by Japanese forces.

As we approach the seventieth anniversary of these attacks, the Royal Australian Mint is releasing a three coin uncirculated set depicting images of these attacks and the civilian response. Remembering these events will remind the nation of our ability to rally together in times of need, and the value of peace.
2012 SHORES UNDER SIEGE
BOMBING OF AUSTRALIA 1942

2012 50c and 20c Uncirculated
Three Coin Set

This uncirculated three coin set commemorates the efforts and experiences of both civilians and military personnel on the home front.

The 50c coin shows dramatic impact zones looming over a map of Australia, illustrating the many points of attack in 1942.

One 20c coin shows the dramatic silhouette of a lone sentry keeping watch on a gun turret, facing out to sea, while the other 20c coin shows an air raid shelter, with civilians awaiting entry.

This commemorative three coin set is creatively presented in packaging indicative of a wartime telegraph. Each coin is contained in its own card, which contains information about the war at home, and its impact on Australian society.

Following on from the much loved Land, Air, and Ocean releases, the Animals of the Zoo series is being released to coincide with the 150th anniversary of the Melbourne Zoo. The coins feature traditional coin sculpture as well as colour printing, and are presented in a coin-in-card format complete with educational information on each of these unique animals.
Asian Elephant  310114
Melbourne Zoo’s family of seven Asian Elephants is set to expand with a calf due to be born at the end of 2012. Did you know that an adult elephant may eat up to 120 kilograms of food and drink 200 litres of water per day?

Southern Corroboree Frog  310120
It’s hard to hide when you’re this colourful, like the Southern Corroboree Frog. Melbourne Zoo is currently home to almost one hundred of these critically endangered frogs. You would be lucky to see one in the wild, given they live in a tiny pocket of Kosciuszko National Park.

Western Lowland Gorilla  310117
Melbourne Zoo is currently home to six Western Lowland Gorillas. While they are generally found in the forests of Africa, they will be just as at home in your coin collection.

Sumatran Tiger  310123
There are five critically endangered Sumatran Tigers at Melbourne Zoo. While their effective camouflage makes them the perfect predator, you won’t have to search too hard to find one to add to your colour printed coin collection.

2012 50c Fine Silver Proof Coin

St Edward’s Crown was used in The Queen’s coronation ceremony in 1953 which is why it takes centre stage in these magnificent designs for Her Majesty’s Diamond Jubilee. The detail in this most historic and bejewelled crown is seen best on the fine silver proof version. The silver gleams in the custom designed presentation case flocked with a royal purple inlay and complemented by a metal badge insert marking it with the series logo of the Royal Australian Mint Royal Collection range.

2012 50c Cupro Nickel Uncirculated Coin

Like many of our most popular coins and enduring royal designs these jubilee coins are designed by the official jeweller and goldsmith to Queen Elizabeth II, Stuart Devlin.

The designs are certainly celebratory, with blooms of fireworks encrusted with diamonds bursting behind the centrepiece of St Edward’s Crown, all for The Queen who graces the obverse.

Price $9.00
As Head of the Commonwealth, Queen Elizabeth II has been an undeniably important part of Australia’s history, identity and role in the world theatre. Since her accession to the throne in 1952, she has overseen many changes within the Commonwealth, and indeed to the social, political, cultural and technological fabric of the globe.

This fun collection of international currency is presented in a colourful, book-style presentation folder. The folder measures 360 mm x 305 mm when closed so it is a great size to share. Adults and children alike can learn about the coins of the Commonwealth as they investigate where each of the 44 included coins belong in an interactive activity that the whole family will enjoy.

The folder also contains an information booklet describing all of the coins and their corresponding nations in more detail.

The Royal Australian Mint’s 2012 Wheat Sheaf Dollar Mintmark Series pays homage to the pre-decimal Australian ‘Wheat Sheaf’ threepence. The Wheat Sheaf design, which appeared in circulation from 1938 until 1964, continues the focus on our rural industries and Australian pre-decimal currency that began with the 2011 Ram’s Head Dollar.

2012 Australian Wheat – Two Coin Proof Set & Two Coin Uncirculated Set

The cultivation and harvest of wheat are central to the design of the one dollar, while the twenty cent coin harkens to the historic Wheat Sheaf Penny design that appeared on Australia’s pre-decimal currency. Fields of golden wheat can be found across the breadth of Australia. Since the early days of settlement these crops have played an important role, from the self sufficiency of a young nation to an industry that contributes billions of dollars to our national economy today. In 2012 these coins reflect the outstanding contribution that wheat has made, and will continue to make, to Australia’s agricultural and economic development.

In 2012, Australia celebrates the Year of the Farmer. It is a year to acknowledge the efforts of farming communities and the 136,000 farms across our vast brown land, as well as the rural industries and agribusinesses that they support.

We have farmers to thank for our food and natural fibres. Though they are often faced with challenges never experienced nor fully understood by their urban-dwelling cousins, Australian farmers continue to supply us with some of the best produce in the world.

This $1 uncirculated coin design illustrates the biodiversity of Australia’s farming communities in the fields of both agriculture and animal husbandry. It showcases farming across the broad spectrum of agribusiness from fruit orchards to fields of wheat, sheep and cattle farming, all dependent on the strategic and talented use of water, a valuable and often scarce resource.

Can you spot the 'chicken crossing the road'? An unintentional but lighthearted design element realised after coining that we couldn’t resist sharing with you.
“Co-operatives are a reminder to the international community that it is possible to pursue both economic viability and social responsibility.” — United Nations.

The United Nations has declared 2012 to be the International Year of Co-operatives, with the General Assembly President commending co-operatives on their contribution to food security, rural development and other social services.

Voluntary, democratic, independent and self-sufficient, the co-operative business model has been a major factor in realising economic growth and social development. Since the 1850s, they have been a part of Australia’s socio-economic landscape, employing locals and redistributing profits back into local communities.

To celebrate the important role that co-operatives play in our communities and beyond, the Royal Australian Mint has introduced a commemorative $1 uncirculated coin. The coin features building blocks, which represent the role that co-operatives play in providing stability in a fast-paced global economy.

The Royal Australian Mint’s Year Sets are highly prized by seasoned collectors and beginner numismatists alike. Each year these sets provide an invitation to look more closely at the coins we see every day, rediscover the detail of their design and appreciate their beauty and craftsmanship. Individually, each set appropriately commemorates the year of its release and consecutively, they provide the foundation of a comprehensive collection of Australian coins. The 2012 Special Edition Year Sets are no exception and with the inclusion of two very distinctive 50 cent coins they are anything but traditional. After all, we are the Royal Australian Mint – innovators not imitators.
2012 SIX COIN YEAR SETS

2012 Six Coin Proof Set
Selectively Gold Plated 50c Coin Edition

The showpiece of this collection is undoubtedly the selectively gold plated 50 cent piece, featuring the Australian Coat of Arms as sculpted by Stuart Devlin. This magnificent piece and accompanying coins earmark this set as unique to 2012 and will become a true treasure. All six coins have been finished to a world-standard proof quality, using an intricate process of individual pressing and hand polishing under pristine conditions.

The four Grand Slam® tournaments: Australian Open, French Open, Wimbledon and the US Open, represent the pinnacle of world tennis competition. Wimbledon was the first of these tournaments and commenced in 1877, with the Australian Open, originally the Australasian Championships, starting in 1905. Since then the Australian Open has been contested each year, except during the two World Wars and in 1986, when the tournament shifted from mid-December to mid-January.

Official Australian Open Men’s and Women’s Trophy Coins

The uncirculated coins feature the iconic trophies of the Australian Open presented on a background of curved stripes that mirror the rubber strip on a tennis ball. Given the iconic stature of both the Men’s and Women’s trophies, we have given them their own respective coins.

2011 $5 Uncirculated Coin

In October, Her Majesty The Queen visited Australia as part of her official attendance at the 2011 Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting held in Perth.

Accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, this is Her Majesty’s sixteenth visit to our shores.

To commemorate this visit, Royal Australian Mint senior coin sculptor Wojciech Pietranik has created a regal design featuring sixteen St Edward’s Crowns, to symbolise each of Her Majesty’s visits to Australia, on an uncirculated five dollar coin.

The coin is then presented in an exclusive display card with majestic colours which also includes a special pocket to add the Vladimir Gottwald design of the CHOGM 2011 commemorative circulating $1 coin, completing the Royal Collection for 2011.

This Issue’s From the Vault, is actually a collection of coins. They may not have started out that way, but time has joined them together where they will no doubt remain.

One of the Royal Australian Mint’s most treasured items is a curious formation of coral, indented with old, foreign coins. This piece of coral, which contains Dutch cobs, once grew on the wreck of the Vergulde Draek or ‘Gilt Dragon’. The Vergulde Draek, one of the oldest recorded wrecks on the infamous Western Australian coast, met its watery end in 1656.

Of the 78 600 guilders worth of silver coin that the ‘Gilt Dragon’ was carrying, a few have become part of Australia’s National Coin Collection and are on permanent display in the Royal Australian Mint’s Gallery. Among the coins recovered include two eight reale coins, which are more commonly known as ‘pieces of eight’, the much sought after coins of pirate lore.

The ‘Gilt Dragon’ was a 260 tonne, 42 metre ‘jacht’, a light, fast sailing vessel used by the Dutch navy. On its second voyage to the spice-trading headquarters of the Verenigde Oostindische Compagnie (United East Indies Company) at Batavia (Jakarta), it sailed too far east and struck a reef on 28 April 1656, just 5.6 kilometres off the Western Australian coastline.

These coins lay undiscovered from April 1656, when the ship sank, until the shipwreck was discovered in 1963. The 'Coins in the Coral', as well as the famous ‘pieces of eight’, are currently on permanent display at the Royal Australian Mint.
